How to Use This Tracker

Chronic pain is hard to treat partly because it's hard to see. Doctors get fifteen minutes and a memory blurred by the pain itself. This book turns ninety days of your life into evidence: when it hurts, what makes it worse, what actually helps.

Each day takes about three minutes: pain levels through the day, sleep, stress, weather, suspected triggers, and what relief you tried. On bad days, write less — a single pain score still counts.

When a flare hits, give it its own Flare Log page while it's fresh: what the 48 hours before looked like is where the patterns hide.

Every 30 days, the Pattern Review pulls it together — and the Appointment Prep pages turn your data into the ten sentences that make a specialist visit count.
